

Monday Morning Rewind – September 18, 2006

It's Monday morning. Have you prayed for your kids today? On Sabbath we celebrated children and looked at why Jesus said the kingdom of heaven belongs to them. In contrast to politically-minded, status-hungry, adults, children possess the virtues that heaven most admires—honesty, simple trust, loving obedience, total dependence, and childlike-faith. Children also loved being in the presence of Jesus. Do we, or are we just too busy doing “adult” stuff?

In case you weren't at church Sabbath, I'm attaching the two items that were in the bulletin. These will help you to know how to pray for the children in your life. You don't have to be someone's biological parent to have a real burden and love for our kids. Even if you're single, our Kuna kids, our BVAS kids, our Caldwell and Eagle school kids, and our Gem State kids need your prayers and your influence in their lives.

Rewind to Matthew 18:1-4 and Mark 10:13, 14 and ask yourself the question: In what areas of my life do I tend to struggle with childishness? Where do I need to make progress with childlikeness? God bless you as you strive to be more childlike in your relationship with God this week.

P.S. Monday Morning Fast Forward – This weekend, your pastor and the Kuna church elders are coming together for a special season of prayer and seeking God. Our retreat begins this Friday night at 7:00 p.m. and will continue after church Sabbath afternoon. Our purpose is to bond together as a leadership team and to seek God's vision for the mission and ministry of our church. We're all in this together and I'm asking you to join us in prayer that God will knit our hearts together and will meet with us this weekend to reveal His priorities, clarify His purposes, and fill us with His Spirit. Thank you for remembering us in prayer!
